Muddy Boots Hike – Obed Wild & Scenic River: Point Trail

Hike Description: This is an out and back trail with a round trip length of 4.2 miles winding through a hemlock forest with green walls of laurel and rhododendron. The trail culminates on the narrow, exposed ridge that separates the Obed River and Clear Creek River before their confluence. Sections along the ridge allow for fantastic views on both sides. Along this exposed ridge, if you look closely, you might catch a glimpse of rock climbers on the distant sheer cliffs. There are many rock ledges where you can enjoy a picnic lunch or just take a moment to take in the views. The most popular viewpoint is through the arch rock on the right side of the trail approaching the trail's terminus.
